Okay so if I get the final final version back I will send it in prior to 8 pm tonight. I need to run out for about 2 hours right now so I can send when I return.

Sound good? Just need to know who I am emailing it to.

Thanks!

Thank you Sue, very happy to hear we got it right ;)

I will work on these changes right now. I also just realized a dumb mistake that I'll fix, about the first hour rating of hpwh, not sure if you caught that too.

Will revert the next version back for final approval. Do you want me to docket it then? It's an email submittal. Or do you want to do it yourself?

Fantastic work! You struck a great balance between support and constructive advice. Bravo! If I get beat up or congratulated by both the gas industry and PG&E it will be a rousing success. A couple of minor changes and it is good to go. One section I made a note (George Burmeister addition) that I will leave it to you.

Thank you for yet another fire fight you guys.....

Have a great weekend! I'm off to Paso Robles in the morning and will tip a glass to you three. ☺

Hi Daniela,

we're working on it right now; some of Sue's comments are a bit tricky to address for us because we don't have the history of Asrac; we took that part of the text from PG&E. Bo is going to try and give Michelle a call, she may know some of that, or have other pointers.

cc Sue's personal email per your other message

We'll be in touch

See attached

One of the docs has change tracking (vs. yesterday's "clean" version), the other does not.

I wrote everything in Lisa's name, copied from the furnace letter. Don't know if that's correct, let us know.

I inserted several sections tooting SoCalGas' horn (merged from the furnace letter), and a large section about marginal electricity cost (Q5). That's been a pet peeve of mine for a long time and it beats me why PG&E never wants to address it. From hallway conversations with Marshall, because "they'll never do anything about it", but is that reason enough?? It's a big deal IMHO.

I got rid of some more of PG&E's verbiage, but also retained some that was just plain good IMHO. If you need a diff of this document vs. PG&E's latest original let me know. About 50% of the letter is pure "us" at this point, and the rest has been modified to various degrees. Similarities to PG&E's letter are still recognizable.

Happy reading

Marc

I think we can rephrase what we have so far in our own words. If pge objects that we stole some of their ideas and just used our own words, too bad, I think.

Do you want me to get on that tonight, or is there a redacted version from Sue coming?

I just touched base with Sue and SoCalGas will be looking to submit an individual comment letter. Hi Daniela, wanted to let you know that Bo and I will need to wrap up our contributions to this tomorrow by 5:30pm and 3pm respectively; I have a long standing plan with my kids, and Bo has something else planned as well. Before then, anything goes, including late evening today if necessary. The sooner you could let us know what we still have to do the better.

The deadline has no time associated with it, which technically makes it 9pm tomorrow.

Thanks!!

Hi Sue,

please find attached our updated version of the RFI response, in two versions

- marked up, where all previous edits were accepted excepts yours and Daniela's.

Bo's and my new additions and deletions are tracked, too.

- same as above but completely clean of any tracking, comments or author information.

I attached a few additional ideas in a separate document that we already know are most likely going to be socialgas only, so we haven't fleshed them out or included them yet.

The LCC methodology and problems we see with its data were socialgas-separate earlier, but are now included in Question 4 of the main file.

Take that, PG&E ;)

Cheers
