

| Comment # | PA(s) | Sector | Page # | Comment |
|-----------|-------|--------|-----------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| NRDC-1 | 3CREN | Res | Overarching (Tracker) | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • It's unclear why a REN is needed for this effort. There is no provided analysis or summary of the explicit challenges to warrant a new entity. • This sounds like an intriguing program that could be accomplished through a local government partnership. • P. 21 - Unclear if the budget is being requested solely from the CPUC or if it includes the other sources noted above. If just from the CPUC, it seems quite high – especially without any information on the savings or cost-effectiveness. • How did the 3C REN coordinate the development of this plan with their respective overlapping utilities to ensure this really is filling a gap vs. being duplicative? • NRDC presume the BP will comply with the business plan checklist and expectations for citations for barriers, trends, etc. as well as and references to evaluation lessons. |